In comparing my website in different browsers, the text-weight and form styles stood out the most. In Safari, the navigation links were a heavier text-weight. In both Safari and Mozilla, the margins and padding of the form changed. In Safari, the fieldset box condensed the "Preferred Contact Method" and forced it onto two lines. In both Mozilla and Firefox, the checked radio buttons shifted so the white inner circle appeared in different spots.